Training Course: Advanced Strategies in Selection and Recruitment

Training Course code: HR235121 From: 9 - 13 December 2024 Venue: London (UK) - Landmark Office Space
- Oxford Street Training Course Fees: 5250 € Euro

Introduction:

One of the common mistakes that human resource managers make is focusing more on short-term workforce needs than long-term ones. This non-strategic approach leads organizations to face painful surprises in terms of both quantity and characteristics of workforce availability. This reactive approach forces HR managers to deal with a series of consecutive crises, resulting in an ineffective organizational response. This program aims to provide an advanced strategy rooted in modern trends for selection, recruitment, and attraction processes, while also presenting systems for creating disciplinary penalty regulations.

Program Objectives:

By the end of the training program, participants will be able to:

- Develop human resources through modern methods of selection, hiring, and recruitment.
- Recognize the latest mechanisms and practices for human resource management, including performance assessment and evaluation.
- Shift their attitudes towards performance effectiveness and efficient thinking.
- Design effective fundamental rules for disciplinary penalties and consequences.
- Create excellence plans for human resource management performance aligned with comprehensive quality standards.
