Introduction

Demands for building skills of effective managers and leaders in today's current business environment are more prevalent than ever before, but a person can only become more effective if they have a high level of self-confidence and skills in leadership of people and tasks. These types of management and leadership principles and skills do not come naturally. A person learns and develops skills in these areas through a never-ending process of self-study, education, training and experience. Building task leadership skills and practicing self-confidence is an effective exercise a leader and manager should complete to sharpen the ability to carry out responsibilities and successfully accomplish goals.

The purpose of this comprehensive course is to present a program to assist persons in developing their skill in self-confidence and building skill in task leadership with others. Leading with Confidence is a course which will impact on a person's business success and increase one's credibility in dealing with others. The second module, Managing Multiple Tasks, Priorities & Deadlines, presents a focus on the use of productive leadership practices in completing and prioritizing tasks. Both modules provide practical skills to take to the job, along with insights needed to adapt principles to specific work environments. The modules can be taken together or individually as a participant needs.
