Training Course: Frontline Customer Service

Training Course code: RR234911 From: 21 - 25 April 2025 Venue: London (UK) - Landmark Office Space - Oxford Street
Training Course Fees: 5250 € Euro

Introduction

“Frontline Customer Service” is an area that all companies invest in, as they are considered the primary facilitators for customer interaction and satisfaction.

In other words, there is much urgency in this particular line of work for both companies and employees, and requires an equally meticulous training program to address this urgency.

This training course will therefore include interactive lectures on:

- How to address the various kinds of fears that most customer service representatives tend to experience.
- Understanding your customer and customer's behaviour.
- How to read customers' emotions through pitch and body language.
- How to communicate information.
- How to defuse tension between reps and customers.

The ultimate goal here is to not just turn employees into resilient assets, but expert communicators capable of turning the tide of any conversation.

Training Objectives

At the end of this training program, participants will be able to:

- Define quality customer service.
- Know your customer's behavior.
- Learn the customer service, and transaction model.
- Know the different techniques for face-to-face vs. telephone interactions.
- Recognize visual, auditory, and kinesthetic words
- Know the different aspects of body language that can be matched and/or mirrored
- Understand the four components of vocal characteristics
- Know the different aspects of communication.

- Gain the appropriate communication skills.
