Introduction

This highly interactive program has a dual focus. Delegates will explore their own behavioral and leadership styles and learn how to fully engage and develop employees by using state of the art techniques grounded in Neuro-Linguistic Programming NLP, Emotional IntelligenceEI, and psychometric testing.

Week two explores the practical art of communicating to groups and larger audiences. The program is highly practical. Delegates will have ample opportunity to practice in a supportive environment. The use of effective body language, the importance of tone and projection and the paramount need to make a good early impression are all areas considered to ensure a comprehensive understanding of the principles of communicating to larger audiences. This course is progressive, it builds on existing communication skills, the learning of week one, and structured practical sessions supported by peer and instructor feedback.
