Introduction

The early development of project management focused heavily on techniques such as the planning and control of large, multi-functional, multi-organizational projects. Whilst these activities remain central to professional project management, the leadership role of the project professional has been increasingly recognized as a key determinant in delivering success.

This program focuses on the leadership skills needed in project situations, where tight budgets and deadlines demand high levels of performance from a team that is frequently changing and where the working environment presents fresh challenges on a daily basis.

Objectives

- Understand the significance of leadership skills to the project professionals and the impact of these skills on project performance
- Review the key skills needed to be an effective, 'multi-dimensional' project leader and learn how to develop, adapt and apply them in practice
- Learn how to identify the preferred leadership style for the context and organizational culture of a project and how to develop personal style versatility
- Understand the role of the project leader in building an effective team and the skills required to promote and sustain team performance
- Gain a better understanding of the interpersonal skills needed to motivate individual team members and harness the full potential of the team

Methodology

Participants will learn through a range of teaching and personal development methods including presentations, tutorials, real-life case studies, worked examples, short team exercises, and video presentations. Active participation and involvement will be encouraged throughout the program to promote the sharing of ideas and expertise within the group.
