Training Course: Certificate Course in Front Office Management

Training Course code: OM234892 From: 3 - 7 February 2025 Venue: London (UK) - Landmark Office Space - Oxford Street
Training Course Fees: 5500 € Euro

Introduction

The front office is often the first point of interaction between customers and the organization. Customers at hotels, restaurants, hospitals or customers looking for customer service, or advisory services are greeted primarily by the front office staff. Employees engaged in integrating sales are also a part of the front office.

The front office is the customer-facing department of any organization and is often responsible for making or breaking the reputation of a business as their operations are visible to the customers and they have direct contact with the customers. It would be apt to call them the revenue-generating division of any firm.

Objectives

- Enable the organization to "put their best face forward" and ensure consistent customer service excellence on part of the front office
- Motivate front office professionals to do their best while performing their duties with customized training
- Inculcate organization, administrative and clerical skills within the participants
- Ensure those front office professionals are instilled with extremely useful problem-solving and communication skills
- Highlight the importance of front-office management in different industries
- Teach handling of monetary transactions at the front office
- Explore the range of job roles engaged in front-office management
- Ensure systematized office operations along with smooth coordination with back-office operations

Methodology

- Interactive sessions and lectures
- Presentations
- Management games
- Roleplaying/modeling
- Case studies

- Group discussions
- Problem-solving sessions

Organizational Impact

- The organization will be able to witness the smooth flow of work through front office management. The front office will successfully synchronize its operations with that of other departments
- The front office is recognized as revenue generating section of a business; thus, the course will train the personnel with the best practices towards the same
- Organization can become more dynamic as front office management allows collecting information from the ever-changing business environment and implementing those changes in the daily functioning of the office
- Efficient office management training will provide clarity of authority and responsibility within the staff. This will create an orderly mechanism that will develop managers into leaders. Thus, it will promote leadership

Personal Impact
