Introduction:

In today's global business environment, executive support professionals are expected to go beyond traditional administrative duties and take on broader responsibilities that combine organizational efficiency with an understanding of international legal frameworks.

This 5-day training program by Global Horizon Training Center is designed to develop advanced executive secretarial and administrative skills while providing essential insights into international law and cross-border operations. It focuses on improving communication, documentation management, organizational coordination, and executive support in a global context.

Through practical exercises and applied learning, participants will gain the ability to support senior leadership effectively, manage international tasks, and ensure smooth operations while maintaining compliance with relevant legal and organizational standards.

Objectives:

By the end of the program, participants will:

- Master essential executive management and secretarial techniques for global operations.
- Develop expertise in organizing and managing international correspondence and documentation.
- Understand key principles of international law and their implications for organizational decision-making.
- Enhance skills in managing contracts, compliance, and cross-border agreements.
