Introduction

Cultural intelligence CQ is "the capability to relate and work effectively across cultures and diversity". It measures how we behave in diverse situations.

Our world is shrinking. Fifty years ago most of us lived in a community with people who looked like us, talked like us, believed like us, and behaved the same as us. This is no longer true. Very few of us are not touched daily by differences in others. We live with diversity surrounding us in a global society. In the modern world successful people also need to work with people who are not like them, people from different backgrounds, age, race, ethnicity, gender, socio-economic status, physical or mental abilities, religion, political views, national origin, appearance, sector, job or education. They need CQ.

Course Objectives

- Build awareness as well as acquire the skills of dealing with and accepting diversity and differences.
- You will grow the ability to act and relate appropriately and effectively in various diversity and cultural contexts.
- The practice of face-to-face interactions between people whose cultures or backgrounds are different from one another
- Discuss the importance of not assuming sameness especially in a new environment and the impact of doing so.
- Develop the willingness and ability to engage appropriately and effectively with others who are different from us
- Explain how increased awareness of our own stereotypes can support the use of inclusive language that is sensitive to cultural differences and diversity.
